FOREWORD

In the Second World War an air force was its aircraft. These were the vehicles carrying destructive power against the enemy, the key factor in operations insofar as high command planned on the basis of the numbers available and their strike ability.

The aircraft is also the counting piece for the air war historian, the key to unlocking doors to a detailed study of a particular mission or unit's operational record. A first move in such a study is to establish individual aircraft identities, a task fraught with difficulty because many of those best able to match aircraft serial numbers with markings and nicknames--the aircrew and the groundcrew--committed many of these details not to paper but to memory. They had a war to fight and the time they had to contribute to The Mighty Eighth's history was restricted by duty or cut short altogether by combat. Despite this, some did record these details and for that we are appreciative. Yet a number of others have left this world without taking the opportunity to record, for the benefit of future generations, their thoughts, memories, and deeds.

For the boys of my generation the individuality that numbers, letters and nicknames bestowed on aircraft was a fascination. The aircraft of a particular model might be from the same production line but the paintwork conferred something that I can only describe as an inanimate personality. Many wondrous hours were spent recording the markings sported by 8th Air Force aircraft seen both flying and on the ground. We youngsters saw B-17s and B-24s in quite a different light to those men who worked on the ground as well as those who flew and fought in them.

Paul Andrews and William Adams are of even a younger generation and they have developed something of the fascination for the individual aircraft. Perhaps they have an advantage in the task they have set for themselves--and executed so well--in that they bring a certain mind set to the subject unhampered by the visual impact that tends to cloud the judgement of those who witnessed the real thing.

This study represents a prodigious undertaking which only the dedicated enthusiast might attempt. Establishing and filling out aircraft identities in order to build this detailed record requires thousands of hours of effort, even with the aid of modern computer magic. The result of Paul Andrews and William Adams' labours is truly an invaluable source of information on the heavy bombers of The Mighty Eighth.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This project set out to compile historical data on those B-17s and B-24s assigned to The Mighty Eighth during the Second World War. As a measure of success, this volume is a product not only of our collective research efforts, but also the support of a number of research centers with their staffs, bomb group associations with their archivists and historians, as well as a small army of contributors. Hardly a week passes without receiving additional "bits and pieces" that either confirms existing data or adds to the data base. With due respect to everyone's contributions, ten individuals are singled out for their long time support coupled with the invaluable sharing of their expertise and research: Thomas E. Bass, John R. Beitling, Cliff T. Bishop, Richard Drain, Wallace Foreman, Roger A. Freeman, C. Craig Harris, Ian L. Hawkins, Edward J. Huntzinger, and Larry Wilson. Finally, without the generous and enthusiastic support of the Eighth Air Force Memorial Museum Foundation, this research effort would have remained little more than a personal advocacy confined to a small mountain of research notes loosely organized into filing cabinets and desk drawers. While efforts have been taken to acknowledge everyone's support and assistance to Project Bits and Pieces, apologies are extended to those whose names may have been inadvertently omitted.

PROJECT BITS AND PIECES

Scope

The primary and secondary sources available on the Mighty Eighth's history present the researcher with a unique problem - having too much information. There is a wealth of data that can be extracted from the thousands of cubic feet of primary sources - official documents, photographs, and personal accounts - stored at a number of research centers. Supplementing this are hundreds of secondary sources - books and periodical articles. Locating the information, compiling it, and retrieving it efficiently presents an enormous task for the researcher, aviation enthusiast, and veteran alike. This point did not escape Alfred Price and Jeffrey Ethell's attention in Target Berlin Mission 250: 6 March 1944 where they stated: "No comprehensive list linking names with aircraft serial numbers was ever made." Project Bits and Pieces is designed to exceed these concerns by providing an historical survey of B-17s and B-24s assigned to the 8th Air Force (8AF) from acceptance into the inventory through to each bomber's ultimate fate.

Research Methodology

The primary and secondary sources utilized in Project Bits and Pieces are --1) historical documents, 2) photographs, 3) personal accounts, and 4) published research.

Historical Documents

Each aircraft accepted into the inventory received a serial number and it is with this number that an aircraft's history was recorded in official records generated from the squadron up through to the air force level. If persistent and patient enough it is conceivable to negotiate through all of the associated challenges and frustrations to reconstruct an aircraft's history. Yet, despite the potential for success, the process is tedious. Often the exhilaration of unearthing small caches of information is tempered by having a promising line of investigation turn into a proverbial dead end.

Records created during the war satisfied command requirements for information to track the course and progress of the air war. Save for those compiling the information who also had a sense of history, these records were neither designed nor intended to answer future historical questions. Because of varying command requirements coupled with time limitations imposed on a group's staff to accomplish the myriad of administrative tasks and compile statistical data for each sortie, the documentation varies in quality and consistency not only from group to group but also sometimes from squadron to squadron. At a time well before "liquid paper" or the "word processor," typographical errors where names were misspelled and serial numbers transposed could not be avoided or easily corrected. Nor for that matter would the air war come to a crashing halt if an individual's name was spelled with one "n" instead of two or that the serial number was reported as 231899 instead of 231989 or 337898 was reported as 237898. As another example, it is known that the 95BG's B-17G identified only as 8660 flew its first sortie on 22 October 1944 and failed to return from an operation on 20 January 1945. The Missing Air Crew Report (MACR) 11755 states the full serial number is 48660. Recently, it was brought to our attention that 48660 was a 390BG B-17 and the correct serial number for the 95BG was 338660. After reviewing the available records it is clear that 48660 could not be the 95BG aircraft in question because it was not accepted into the Army Air Force inventory until 18 November 1944, nearly a full month after 8660 flew its first sortie. Knowing that a unit's mission report was at times over one hundred pages in length, one can then appreciate the effort associated with preparing such reports in a timely manner. Furthermore, one must appreciate the pressures associated with the preparation of twenty mission reports over a ten week period, as it was early in the war, and generating the same number in less than a month. As such, errors like the mis-identification of 8660 are bound to happen.

As the requirement for operational information increased, units out of necessity altered its presentation. For example, after each mission Fuel and Oil Consumption reports provided Command with the necessary information to anticipate its demand for petroleum products. When the 8AF was reorganized in September 1943 into three Air Divisions, each Air Division generated these reports. Some groups like the 100BG, for a brief period, provided the aircraft serial number, pilot's last name, position in the formation, squadron assigned, and the individual aircraft letter code. For others, however, such details were not provided.

To further underscore this point about the documentation's consistency, during the initial research phase of this project a document series--Monthly Group Inventory--was located for the 1st Air Division. Submitted by each group, these reports provided the serial numbers of the aircraft assigned, on-hand, and on detached service as of 2000 hours on the 6th day of the month. In the beginning these records were very detailed. Yet, like the Fuel and Oil Consumption reports, operational demands forced this format to be revised where only the serial number would be provided. Along a similar line of investigation another document was found that detailed the temporary duty status of each aircraft of the 1st Air Division. With this document and the Monthly Inventory, it was possible not only to identify nearly each B-17 assigned to the 1st Air Division, but far more importantly track its operational history on a day-to-day basis. This is the exhilarating part. The teaser remains in locating similar records for the 2nd and 3rd Air Divisions. To date these documents remain elusive.

Completeness and consistency of the records aside, there are still concerns regarding the methods of reporting information. One example illustrates some of the problems. A 95BG B-17F 23110 was credited with flying three sorties and having been assigned to three of the group's squadrons. It seems doubtful that between 17 and 21 May 1943 this B-17 would have been formally reassigned so many times, but that is exactly what the documentation indicates. A more plausible answer is that in filling out the mission report, the squadron assignment of the crew and not that of the aircraft was recorded. This line of reasoning also seems to apply to the squadron information provided on the MACR. Often enough the crew and the aircraft were assigned to the same squadron, however there were occasions when this was not the case to warrant the researcher's cautious approach about drawing any firm conclusion about an aircraft's squadron assignment. Nevertheless, the dilemma facing the researcher is often fraught with efforts to second guess the individual who prepared the documents over 50 years ago.

Photographs

The National Air and Space Museum Library currently holds the USAF's World War II photograph collection. This collection along with the photographs held by the USAF Museum and other research centers provide a unique source of information. There are however certain limitations. One area involves the variation of an aircraft's name. For example there are photographs of the 388BG's 230213, which shows the name to be spelt two ways-- "Li'l One" and "Lil One"--underscoring the point that there are a variety of spellings even for one aircraft. As a further example, the 401BG's 231662 has photographs of Fannyc Nanncy IV and Fancy Nancy IV. Another issue of the researcher involves the misidentification of the photograph. One example found in the Air and Space Museum's collection is photograph B59230AC which is identified as being assigned to the 398BG. Yet, after a careful investigation, it becomes clear that the photograph is of the 95BG 2102937 Ready Freddie. In another example, on page 9 of Roger Freeman's The Mighty Eighth War Manual is a photograph of the 457BG's mission board. Under the 750BS, there is an unmistakable entry for 237551, R/T letter "P." At face value, the information on the mission board should be correct, yet 237551 is not a valid serial number for a B-17. After some additional research it has been determined that the serial number is most likely 231551. A diligent effort has been made to ensure the information presented in this volume is as accurate as is humanly possible.

Personal Accounts

Information recorded at the time of the event or recalled years later by an individual who either flew or worked on the aircraft is another rich source. The Acknowledgment section reveals hundreds of individuals who provided specific information about their aircraft that either confirms the historical data or provides information that has not been discerned from exhaustive research efforts.

Published Research

As evident in the Bibliography, published information available on the 8AF is extensive. Every effort has been made to identify these secondary sources and incorporate the author's research into this Project. As noted in the section on historical documents, these published sources are no less vulnerable to typographical errors or incorrect information. For example, on the 10 October 1943 mission to Munster, it was often reported that Rosie's Riveters flown by Robert Rosenthal was one of only two 100BG B-17s to return from that day's mission. After careful research, it has been determined that the B-17 Rosenthal flew was 26087 Royal Flush. Every effort has been taken to ensure such errors are not knowingly repeated.

Format

This volume is comprised of four sections - 1) 8AF units outlined in the Table of Contents, 2) Pilot of Record Index, 3) Aircraft Name Index, and 4) the Bibliography. For each unit discussed there is a thumbnail sketch of its history detailing where possible when the unit was activated - the date it began to accept personnel and aircraft - the air field name and date of arrival, the dates of the first operational sortie (FOS) and last operational sortie (LOS), as well as information regarding the unit's markings. For each unit, information about its heavy bombers is provided in numerical order by aircraft serial number. As structured, those knowing the unit assignment and serial number of an aircraft can learn about its history. For those who may only know the name of a pilot involved in a significant incident, such as failing to return from an operational sortie, or the aircraft's personal nickname, indexes are provided to assist in determining the unit and aircraft serial number.

As illustrated above, each entry contains three elements:

1. The first entry line, which is in bold face, contains information pertinent to the aircraft's unit assignment, markings, and aircraft name.
2. Indented and in smaller type are entry lines with information pertinent to the aircraft's history.
3. Indented and in smaller type and following "See:" are, where applicable, citations to primary and secondary sources. These citations are fully detailed in the Bibliography.

In the first entry line, from left to right, information is provided to the extent possible about the serial number as it appears on the vertical stabilizer, group and squadron assignments, squadron letter codes, individual aircraft Radio Transmission (R/T) identification letter, and the aircraft name. Multiple entries for squadron assignments, codes, and aircraft names are presented. Immediately underneath this entry line is information presented in short hand that details the aircraft's history.

Efforts have been taken to present the information about each heavy bomber in a straightforward format by having each entry contain three elements. Despite these efforts, the nature of information does promote confusion. With this in mind, the following are observations addressing the various nuances germane to each element's components.

Serial Number - The aircraft serial number, for example 42-31333, is composed of two components. The "42" indicates that in 1942 a contract was signed with a company to build an aircraft and the "31333" is the air frame's unique serial number. This number appears on a number of official documents. Also a simplified number was applied onto the aircraft's vertical stabilizer. In this case, "42-31333" became "231333." Some documentation, especially at the squadron and group level, only referred to the aircraft by its last three and in some cases the last four digits. In using the same example, "42-31333" could be cited as "333" or "1333."

Squadron - Squadron assignments, even when appearing on official documents, may not necessarily reflect the bomber's actual assignment. For example a 324BS crew could be assigned to fly 322BS aircraft. The MACR generally notes the squadron assignment of the crew and not of the aircraft.

Squadron Codes and R/T Letters - Efforts have been made to note when a bomber appears to have been assigned different squadron and R/T letter codes. In doing so, especially for R/T codes, it is not possible to ensure the order of these variations. For example, "A/G" indicates that bomber had the R/T of "A" and "G" but left unclear is whether the letter "A" or "G" came first.

Name - Early on in the war, the 8AF required groups to supply information about the names given to the aircraft. This policy was in response to concerns about the negative propaganda value of names such as Murder Incorporated. These lists, some sent over teletype machines and others typed on paper, went to the Public Relations Office for screening. The problem is that only a very small portion of these lists have survived. There are inherent problems in addressing the names given because some aircraft were never named while others carried several names. When an aircraft transferred from one unit to another, sometimes the name was retained while on other occasions the name may have been altered or changed altogether. For example, the 95BG's 23046 Ol' Jackson--That Frisco Kid, when reassigned to the 351BG appeared on a list as Old Jackson. The lack of photographic evidence makes it impossible to determine if the name was actually changed. Another problem area involves articles such as "A" or "The." Since those compiling the lists may not have paid particular attention to detail or that those who flew the aircraft may not recall exactly, there are often questions concerning whether the aircraft was named Blues in the Night or The Blues in the Night. As well, was the aircraft named Blues in the Night or Blues in the Knight? Whenever it surfaces, variations of spellings are provided. Though unnamed, some aircraft did have nose art. In these circumstances the nose art description is presented between parenthesis - i.e. (Donald Duck Carrying a Machine Gun). Finally some aircraft have names that are not readily understood. Where possible information is contained between brackets - i.e. Beba [Bring Em Back Alive].

231333 91 322 LG W Wee Willie
18 10 43 AI 23 11 43 AOS 10 12 43 G

Significant Events - Information is provided through the use of short hand notes that are defined in the General Notes. The first line of information regarding the aircraft's historical events provides dates for the bomber's acceptance into the inventory (AD), arrival over seas (AOS), and being gained by the unit (G). For the most part "G" information is not available for 2nd and 3rd Air Division aircraft, but for the 95BG it has been possible to at least determine an aircraft's first operational sortie (FOS). Immediately following the "G" is information known about the aircraft's previous combat unit assignment. The remaining lines of information detail, to the extent possible, the aircraft's operational history to include significant events such as landing at another base, failing to return from a sortie (FTR), declared salvaged (SAL), or transferred to another unit. As there are a number of possible variations to this element, which may prove to be confusing, what follows are a series of examples accompanied by a narrative explanation.

Failed to Return - On occasion all that is known is the date that an aircraft did not return which is cited as 06 10 44 FTR. There are also other possible entries.

06 10 44 FTRLOC France 25 10 44 SAL

Aircraft on 6 October 1944 was forced to land somewhere in France and was declared salvaged on 25 October.

06 10 44 FTR AA GF EX CR Anglos, ? - 2Lt John J. Jones - 1 EVD, 4 KIA, 5 POW - E&E 273, MACR 2307

Aircraft on 6 October 1944 failed to return because of activity from German anti-aircraft fire and German Fighters which caused the aircraft to explode and crash in or near Anglos. It has yet to be determined in what country Anglos is located. Furthermore, it must be understood that spelling on official documents may not be accurate. The pilot of record was 2Lt John J. Jones and 1 of the crew evaded capture, 4 were killed in action and the remaining 5 were prisoners of war. Additional documentary information is available by examining Escape and Evasion (E&E) Report number 273 and the Missing Air Crew Report (MACR) number

2307. Note: Unless known otherwise, all aircraft FTR are considered to have crashed (CR).

25 06 45 RG UK 04 07 45 ZOI 27 12 45 Kingman, Arizona
Aircraft failed to return because of anti-aircraft damage and landed in Bern, Switzerland. Pilot of record was Major Robert H. Smith and his crew were interned. The aircraft returned to the United Kingdom on 25 June 1945, flew to the U.S. on 4 July and eventually ended up in Kingman, Arizona on 27 December.

06 10 44 FTR MECH DIT English Channel - Capt Joseph M. White - 10 RTD

Aircraft forced to ditch in the English Channel because of unspecified mechanical reasons. Capt White's crew all returned to duty. Note: Unless known otherwise, all aircraft FTR over water are considered to have ditched (DIT).

Salvaged - On occasion all that is known is the date when an aircraft was salvaged which is cited as 06 10 44 SAL. There are also other possible entries.

06 10 44 CR SAL

Aircraft on 6 October 1944 crashed at an unknown site and was declared salvaged. Date of salvage may or may not be the same as the date of the incident. Note: Efforts are made to distinguish between a crash landing, where the pilot had at least some control of the aircraft, and crashing, where the pilot had little if any control. Unless known otherwise, all returning aircraft listed as having "crashed" are considered to have crash landed (CL).

06 10 44 CL RAF Baker 10 10 44 2SAD 27 11 44 SAL

Aircraft crash landed at RAF Air Field Baker on 6 October 1944 and on 10 October the 2 Strategic Air Depot at Warton accepted responsibility for the bomber, but it was not until 27 November 1944 when the aircraft was salvaged.

06 10 44 NOPS CR AF Able SAL

As result of a non-operational sortie, such as a practice mission or a local flight, on 6 October 1944 this aircraft crashed at Air Field Able and was declared salvaged, possibly on the same day.

06 10 44 LAND (nosed over) 08 10 44 SAL

On 6 October 1944, while landing, the aircraft nosed over and was declared salvaged two days later. On occasion details of the incident may not be known.

06 10 44 TAXI 297123 10 10 44 SAL

On 6 October 1944, while taxiing, the aircraft struck another aircraft. If known the aircraft type struck or its serial number will be given. Aircraft declared salvaged four days later.

06 10 44 GROUND CF SAL

On 6 October 1944, during a ground incident, the aircraft caught on fire and was declared salvaged, possibly on the same day.

06 10 44 GROUND (BOMB EX) DEBRIS 07 10 44 SAL

On 6 October 1944, during a ground incident a bomb exploded and this aircraft was destroyed by the debris. Declared salvaged the next day.

21 06 44 LAG Poltava, USSR 02 07 44 SAL

On 21 June 1944, aircraft damaged as result of a Luftwaffe air-to-ground at Poltava, Soviet Union and was declared salvaged on 2 July 1944.

Other Significant Events - At times aircraft were forced to land at other air fields in England or on the continent for a variety of reasons to include battle damage, weather, and having wounded aboard. Also aircraft, at times, were reassigned to another unit.

06 10 44 AF Able RG 10 10 44

Aircraft on 6 October 1944 landed at Air Field Able and returned to its home base on 10 October.

06 10 44 XBG

Aircraft transferred to the X Bomb Group.

06 10 44 BAD1 XBG

Aircraft was sent to the Base Air Depot Burtonwood before its eventual transfer to the X Bomb Group.

See: - This provides additional references to information on the aircraft. A "-" distinguishes one source from another. All of the codes and special notes are provided in the Bibliography. As far as the citations to photographs are concerned, efforts have been made to avoid citing the same photograph used in a dozen different books. Also, efforts have been made to cite only photographs germane to the particular aircraft. Thus the aircraft appearing in a formation of 10 bombers will not likely be cited, whereas the same aircraft in formation with another bomber will be cited. Note: "(J)" appearing next to the source indicates the photograph is of a flying jacket. "(?)" appearing next to the citation indicates it cannot be determined that the source does pertain to the subject aircraft.

Having examined the information in this section, the General Notes, and in the Bibliography, it can be determined from the sample entry provided on the previous pages that 231333, assigned to the 91BG's 322nd squadron, carried the squadron codes of "LG," the individual R/T code "W" and was named Wee Willie. Furthermore, this aircraft was accepted into the inventory on 18 October 1943, arrived in the United Kingdom on 23 November 1943, and was assigned to the 91st on 20 December 1943. The B-17 landed on Hereford Bridge, UK on 2 January 1944 and returned to Bassingbourn two days later. On two occasions, 14 December 1944 and 4 April 1945, the aircraft landed somewhere on the continent before returning to base. Finally on 8 April 1945 the aircraft failed to return as result of flak damage, which caused the plane to explode and crash at or near Stendal, Germany. The pilot of record was Lt. Robert E. Fuller and of the crew all perished except for one person who became a prisoner of war. Additional information can be found by examining Missing Air Crew Report 13881 and two photos can be found at the National Air and Space Museum Library.

Camouflage and Markings

Photographs and motion picture footage provide a telling visual record of the B-17s and B-24s assigned to the 8AF. Owing to its evolutionary and complex nature, this passage outlines some important concepts, but is not intended to replace detailed discussions in Roger A. Freeman's The Mighty Eighth, Kenn C. Rust's Eighth Air Force Story, Dana Bell's Air Force Colors Volume 2, and Steve Birdsall's Flying Fortress in Color. One axiom does override whatever has been or will be written on the subject--the issuance of instructions did not imply immediate alteration to existing camouflage or marking systems. Furthermore, when instructions were issued, often the existing markings were not necessarily erased. Thus, in time an aircraft could have a variety of markings. Also, there existed a transitional period because there is no evidence that any group ever stood down from operations because its aircraft did not carry the most recent marking system.

August 1942 - When the 97BG flew the first mission, its B-17Es appeared with the RAF camouflage which comprised of Light Brown and Dark Green shadow shading the upper surfaces and a Pale Blue Gray under surfaces. Though documentation does not exist, Roger Freeman's observation seemingly provides the best answer in that this scheme was not authorized but rather these aircraft, ear marked for the RAF, were diverted to the 8AF. Aside from the abbreviated serial number (19023 instead of 41-9023) painted in Yellow on the vertical stabilizer, the only other marking was the national insignia. This was a Blue circle with a White, five point star superimposed on it. This insignia was positioned on the upper left and lower right outer wing panel as well as on either side of the fuselage forward of the B-17 waist window and after the B-24's waist window. There was an informal practice of applying a 2" Yellow border around the Blue circle.

Fall 1942 - The standard camouflage applied at the factory to B-17s and B-24s consisted of the upper surfaces painted Number 41 Olive Drab and the lower surfaces with Number 43 Neutral Gray. Added to this was the application in the United Kingdom of Number 42 Medium Green blotching along the leading and trailing edges of the wing and tail areas. B-17s and B-24s assigned to the 44, 91, 93, 303, 305, and 306BGs were affected by this practice, which remained in place until April 1943. To facilitate aircraft-to-aircraft identification an informal marking procedure was employed on which each bomber was identified by a letter. There was no uniform practice in displaying these letters.

December 1942 - As the operational strength grew, the 8AF adopted the RAF identification system in order to facilitate air-to-air identification. This amounted to a two letter code being issued to each squadron and each aircraft receiving a one letter code. This individual code was also known as the Radio Transmission code (R/T). For B-17s both codes appeared on the waist section and the R/T also appeared on the vertical stabilizer. For the B-24s only the squadron codes appeared on the waist section and only the R/T appeared on the vertical stabilizer. Actual placement practices varied between groups and sometimes even between squadrons.

29 June 1943 - As a modification to the national insignia, a White rectangle was added to either side of the Blue circle. Known as the "Star and Bar" this marking was outlined with a Red border. Since some squadron codes were positioned directly adjacent to the insignia, the addition of the "Bar" often overlapped existing codes.

Late June and Early July 1943 - In 1942, three structures constituted the "line and block" chart of the Mighty Eighth--Wing, Group, and Squadron. To distinguish aircraft assigned to one Wing from another, each bomber displayed a geometric symbol on either side of the vertical stabilizer and on the upper right wing area as follows:

- 1st Wing - Triangle (B-17s)
- 2nd Wing - Circle (B-24s)
- 4th Wing - Square or Rectangle (B-17s)

Each group received a letter that was superimposed in Insignia Blue within the symbol. At this time, the R/T code was applied in Yellow beneath the serial number, though other colors such as Gray and White were also used by some units. Shortly thereafter, to reduce the visibility of the National Insignia and geometric symbol, the White areas were painted Light Gray until sometime in early January 1944 with the reinstatement of White.

14 August 1943 - The Red border outline the Star and Bar was replaced with Blue.

13 September 1943 - To accommodate the growing number of groups, the decision was made to create another organizational structure to facilitate the management of the air war. This was accomplished by establishing Air Divisions. Accordingly, all existing Wing markings became the Air Division markings.

Late February 1944 - Judged to improve the operational performance, B-17s and B-24s began arriving in natural metal finish. Some crews aired misgivings about flying NMF bombers since they felt the aircraft "stuck out" in a formation of Olive Drab bombers even though the application of camouflage paint no longer served any purpose. Some consideration was given to camouflaging the NMF aircraft or stripping those camouflaged, but neither measure could be justified economically. Even though some aircraft were stripped of paint, most groups were thinned of camouflaged aircraft from operational losses. In the case of NMF aircraft, the serial number, squadron codes, R/T code, and the geometric symbol were painted Black and the group letter was either White or NMF.

May 1944 - Combat Wings, Groups, and Squadrons began introducing color markings. These are detailed in the marking section for each unit.

Observation - For reasons that appear to have nothing to do with camouflage or markings, some B-17Fs carried vertical stabilizers painted Number 42 Medium Green. While there is ample speculation to explain this situation, it appears that the subcontractor providing the component received the wrong paint. Once discovered, production demands did not permit the repainting of this component. Care must taken not to mistake this situation with the repainting of battle damaged areas or areas that have been retrofitted with field conversions. The ground crews' repair and modification efforts often created a patchwork effect as freshly painted areas stood out, especially against the Olive Drab upper surfaces that had faded in the English climate. As operations intensified and the need increased to return aircraft to combat, there simply was not the time to repaint areas, generating in rather short order NMF bombers with camouflaged components and camouflaged bombers with NMF components.

CALL FOR INFORMATION

The historical process never stagnates; it is subject to an ongoing search for new sources of information as well as a continual reexamination and revalidation of existing sources. Project Bits and Pieces is no different. Despite the wealth of information available and the thousands of man-hours spent compiling the data and resolving conflicting information, there remains a number of missing "bits and pieces."

A very good example of the interactive value of this Project happened at the 1995 St. Louis Reunion of the Eighth Air Force Historical Society. While reviewing carefully the draft report of this Project a veteran, when asked if assistance could be provided, noted that he could not find his aircraft. His plane's name was Ramp Happy Pappy and when asked he thought the last three digits of the serial number were 227. The Aircraft Name Index did not list such a name, thus an addition was needed to be made. Under his group listing - the 493rd - there was a 338227 and the date of salvage corresponded to the date his aircraft was seriously damaged by German fighter activity. This veteran's efforts underscores the keystone of this Project - the search for information in a continual effort to fill in as many remaining "bits and pieces" as is humanly possible.

There are several areas where assistance is required. As noted during the previous pages, information on when B-17s and B-24s were assigned to the various units under the 2nd and 3rd Air Division's units and the transfer of aircraft between these units have yet to be found. Also, it has been extremely difficult to establish all of the unit movements of the B-17Es, especially when they were assigned to non-combat roles as well as those that served in training functions in the United States. Another area that requires further investigation is distinguishing between when an incident took place and its official declaration that it was beyond repair.

In addition, information has been developed about those B-17s and B-24s known to have been assigned to the 8AF, but to which there is no additional information as to the unit assignment. Information has also been developed from Public Relations Office. This office issued news items that provided information to home town news papers about a local air man and often the article noted the aircraft's name. There is evidence that some of the news items misidentified aircraft type. Nevertheless, the names provided need to be further identified.

Accordingly, there is an ongoing call for information. Any one having additional information or corrections to what is presented here are encouraged to submit their information and comments to:

BIBLIOGRAPHY

As noted in the introductory remarks, except for B---, E&E, IR and MACR documents, which appear within the context of the significant event, the majority of primary and secondary sources are listed after See:. Unless otherwise noted, the number to the right of Primary Source citation codes is generally the document number. The number to the right of the Secondary Source citation code is generally the page number. Roman numerals are (i.e. I, II, III), refer to photographs grouped together in unpaginated sections of the book. Also, some books are not paginated.
